

Matthew Millman

PLACES TO STAY

The Most Exciting Hotel Openings This Spring, From a Napa Valley Auberge to a Renovated 1940s Abode in Mexico City

All are convenient enough for a weekend trip but comfortable enough for a week long stay.

BY ERIN FLORIO AND REBECCA MISNER

April 27, 2022

Though we believe in the long weekend getaway as a travel fix that works year-round, this type of vacation really comes into its own in the warmer months. Here, a new New York retreat which is deliciously anti-Hamptons and a chic revival of a 1940s Mexican townhouse are a few of our favorite new openings to book quick escapes to as the mercury starts to rise.

The façade of Casa Polanco in Mexico City Karyn Millet

Casa Polanco's Lincoln Park Suite Karyn Millet

Casa Polanco

Where it's located: You'll find Casa Polanco in the heart of Mexico City's leafy and sophisticated Polanco neighborhood, known for its upscale shops and Spanish Revival-style villas.

Why we're excited: We fall hard for anywhere in Mexico City that pulls the city's own narrative into the design. Here, 19 chic suites are set inside a 1940s estate, filled with woven textiles and a fun color palette. The design duo, mother and daughter team Monica Romo and Monica Novela, used vintage glass and midcentury Mexican antiques to both honor the villa's heritage while original furniture commissions from active Mexican artisans pull it into the modern day. There are intimate touches that make the former home feel like a serviced hotel, like an honor bar and rooftop spa cabin as well as a top-tier concierge who can wrangle just about anything, like a table at Pujol, should you have missed the booking window before flying down. From $530 per night.

<https://www.cntraveler.com/story/the-most-exciting-hotel-openings-this-spring>